It Will Be Dedicated in Brockland Tomorrow by Cardinal Gibbons.

A Large Gathering of Distinguished Clergymen to Be Present-History of the Parish.

Tomorrow morning St. Anthony's Catholic Church in Brookland will be dedicated by Carlinal Gibbons. The ceremony, which will take place at 10 o'clock, will be an impressive one, and one in which many prom inent clergymen will take part. Invitations have been extended to the faculty and students of the Catholic University, to the Marist and Paulist Fathers, the Holy Cross Order, the Catholic societies of this vicinity, all the Catholic churches of the District, as well as many clergy from points outside. So extensive have been the invitations that an assembly larger than that which attended the laying of the corner stone, February 9, is anticipated.

The ceremony will begin at 10 o'clock, outside the building, and after the dedication there will be grand high mass, which will be sung by Rev. Dr. H. Hyvernot of the Catholic University. Cardinal Gibbons will be flanked by Rev. Dr. Garrigan and Rev. Dr. Bouquillon, both of the Catholic University, who will act as assistants at the throne. Rev. Father Gloyd of St. Patrick's Church will be deacon, and one of the Marist Fathers will act as subdeacon. The master of ceremonies will be one of the priests from the Catholic University, while the responses will be sung by a spe-cial choir of priests from the university. Bishop Keane will deliver the sermon.

Bishop Keane will deliver the sermon.

The choir will sing some special music for this occasion, and will be under the direction of Prof. Carl Burg, with Mrs. Chas. Hetfield as organist.

After the ceremony the clergy will be entertained at a dinner at the house where the chapel formerly was located. This is the earnest work of the congregation, and is under the supervision of Mrs. Louis Jullien, assisted by the ladies of the congregation.

The congregation feels that its earnest work of the past few years has been crowned with success, and that now it has a house of worship where all the necessary privfleges may be enjoyed. Many difficulties have been surmounted, and many more are to be overcome by perseverance and hard labor. The congregation is much pleased with the edifice, which is a neat, modest structure of simple architecture, with a frontage of 40 feet and a depth of 80 feet. The back of the church, including the two sacristles, is 55 feet. The wall up to the main floor is of red brick laid in dark red mortar, and the rest is frame. The roof is covered with cypress shingles, stained a dark color, matching well with the body of the church, which is light gray. An octa-gon-shaped belfry surmounts the front gable, and the long, simple roof lines are broken by small dormer windows, which ventilate the interior. The entrance is through an open timber porch, located in the center of the front of the building, leading the center of the front of the building, leading the center of the front of the building, leading the center of the front of the building. ing to a vestibule, thence to the body of ished oak, especially designed by the archi-tect, are reached by a wide center aisle, and two side aisles. The sanctuary has a depth of 28 feet and a width of 20 feet, and is approached by doorways on the north and scuth, each leading to a large sacristy. Ample space has been allowed for two side altars, those of St. Mary and St. Joseph, which will be erected later. Special atten-tion has been given to the circular-shaped rese window over the main altar. This is an excellent plece of work, representing Guido Reni's "Crucifixion," in which the dark, rich background brings out prominently the crucifixion on Mt. Calvary.

The choir is accommodated by a gallery reaching across the entire width of the building. Under the gallery and on each side of the vestibule are located the confessionals, while the baptistry stands in the southeast corner near the entrance. The furnishings of the interior are of polof Brookland, and the architect was Mr. G. A. Dessez of Washington, who has paid special attention to every detail of the the corner stone, which was the donation of Mr. T. Hany of Washington, was laid Feb-ruary 9 with much pomp by Cardinal Sa-tolli. Since then rapid progress has been made, and the congregation has been looking forward to the time when the new church should be ready for occupation with much interest. The first services were held in the new edifice May 24.

site of the church is a very desirable one. It is located in the center of Brookthe city limits. The elevation is high, commanding a view of nearly all of Brookland, together with parts of Washington. The dome of the Capitol, the Catholic Unitersity and the tower of Soldiers' Home tan also be seen from this point. All of these advantages help to make this spot a fine location for a church.

Great consideration and foresight has been displayed in the situation of the present church. The space left on the corner of 12th and Lansing streets will be the site of a future large church, then the present building will be used for a school, while ground has been left on the south side for ground has been left on the south side for a sisters' home, if necessary. The pastoral residence will be on Lansing street below the future large church. The entire ground is 150 by 150 feet, and will ultimately contain, as has been mentioned, four buildings. Of course, it will take many years to complete these plans, and the congregation and its wealth will have to increase. Much interest is being shown by the congregation in the present event. This is only a stepping stone to a larger work, but with the hearty good will and willing aid of the members and friends of the church the demands of this great undertaking will be met. The Sunday school is in a flourishing condition, with an able corps of teachers. The congregation is increasing rapidly and displaying much interest and earnest work.

Many donations have been presented to by Miss Elizabeth Queen, a gift of $500 by Cardinal Gibbons, and other sums by friends of the parish. It has been the generous contributions of friends and the congregation which have enabled the present church to be built.

ette Margot's house on the Bunker Hill road was completed with two spacious parlors on the first floor on the east side, which she intended to use as an art studio. Finding the great necessity of a Catholic church in Brookland, she offered these par-lers to the cardinal for a chapel. Permis-sion was given to hold services there in the fail, and on September 19, 1891, the first mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Mac-kin, now pastor of St. Paul's Church, on 15th and V streets. Father Mackin kindly presented the altar vestments and page. presented the altar, vestments and necessarles to the rising church. From that time on until the fall of 1892 there was no regular pastor, the priests from Washing-ton and the Catholic University filling the pulpit. In the fall of 1892 Rev. D. C. De Wulf, having been appointed pastor of the Soldiers' Home Church, was enabled to take upon himself also the Catholic Chapel able pastor, which position he now holds,
The Sunday school was then brought to the chapel and better organized. Heretofore the children had received religious instructions at the Paulist Fathers'.

Mr. Thompson's Escape. As I rode up to the house I found all the doors shut and an air of loneliness about the place, and, supposing the settler's famlly had gone to town, I was turning to ride on when I heard shouts from a long stable down in the barnyard. Walking down there, I found the structure a small but stout one, with a padlock on the only door. I called back to know who was there, and a man's voice answered: "Stranger, for heaven's sake, let me out "Who are you?" "Who are you?"

"Jim Thompson of Warsaw."
"What are you doing in there?"
"The Widder Jimmerson, who owns this claim, run me in here and locked me up, and I've been here two days."
"A prisoner, eh? You must have been stealing."

"No, I hain't. I came along here day before yesterday on a mewl, and the widder axed me to marry her. I didn't like her looks, and she hauled me off the mewl and locked me in. She's gone to Scottsville arter a preacher to marry us, and if I don't git out afore she comes back I'm a goner."

"She may have gone after the sheriff," I called to him, hardly believing his story.
"Stranger, if things are not as I say I hope to drop dead this minit!" he groaned.
"I kin prove up who I am by a hundred nearly Lemme out afore the widder ar-

After some more talk I got a stick and pried the lock off, and as he emerged I saw that he was a respectable looking man. was going to Scottsville, and after a vain look around for his mule he set out to walk the eight miles alongside of my stirrup. He talked earnest and honest, but I was laughing at his story, when the widow, mounted upon a scrub horse, which she guided with a rope halter and rode like a man, suddenly appeared over a hill.

"Great Scotts! but thar she is!" exclaimed Mr. Thompson, as he made a break for "Here, you-catch him!" shouted the widow, as she dismounted and made after him.

She ran him across a twenty-acre cornfield and over three fences, but he kept gaining, and she finally abandoned the chase. I waited until she came near enough for me to see that she had business with me, and then I set off at a gallop. When she started to follow her old horse fell on his nose and threw her into the ditch, and she was kicking and whooping when I turned for a last look.

About seven miles from Rogersville I was overtaken by an ox cart, in which were a farmer and his wife, and as the former offered me to a lift into town I gladly climbed up beside him. The wife nodded, but did not speak, and after a few words the husband had nothing more to say. At the end of a mile the woman suddenly turned eround and said: "I sav kaliker."

"I keep sayin' kaliker!"

"And, drat yer pictur, I keep sayin' whisky and terbacker!" replied the husband. We crossed a creek and tolled up a long hill, and as the oxen rested for a moment the woman jumped down over the wheel and sat down on a rock. "What's the fussin' now?" demanded the

"Is it kaliker?" she asked.
"Drat it, no!" he shouted.
